

NB GLM with genome-size offset: does ratio-variable bias explain the CME signal?

M1 confirms: absolute KO rate is lower in broad-niche genera ($\beta = -0.097$, $p = 5 \times 10^{-20}$)

Absolute KO count $\div$ genome size vs niche breadth

β across model specifications

